

TABITHA LEVINE

Although you will notice that none of my previous work experience is an obvious transition to Web Development, I feel each position has given me the abilities to start and with mentorship, I can be an asset to your team.

In my career as a Personal Support Worker, the ability to advocate for the client was first. With that comes a constant need to continually reassess as part of a team and maintain contact with each individual of the team for the purpose of all of us contributing toward the same goal. Therefore, collaboration and accurate charting was a constant. As a Personal Trainer, my abilities in customer service allowed me to keep a solid client base. Listening to client preferences and applying those to their program assured them that they had a constant voice in all processes. As clients reached their goals, I gained new clients through word of mouth growing my business naturally based on my effectiveness.

In all my previous and current work, I work alone with integrity, efficiency and attentive detail. Yet, I am and have always been part of the larger team. Qualities that are important to Web Development. I have years of experience in collecting information and analyzing it for the purpose of improvements in my care giving as a PSW and furthering my business as a Personal trainer. As a result, my attrition and retention of client was in the 80% and at the time above average.

At CareerFoundry, I retrained as a Web Developer. I have been challenged daily to learn and fine tune my skills in Web Development with projects that involve HTML5, CSS3, Ruby, Responsive Design and much more. I am confident that I can be an asset to your team's arsenal of great design and marketing.

In addition to my experience and personal qualities, I have a solid interest in continual learning. Please review my attached resume. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Tabitha Levine
